SIG Construction Accessories bolsters business development team

Vaughan Taylor – the managing director of Builders Express – has joined the SIG Construction Accessories team to lead up business development for the business.

Vaughan will be responsible for producing and driving a business strategy for SIG Construction Accessories, taking advantage of key opportunities in the UK market.

He will continue in his role at Builders Express, whilst using his experience and understanding of the business to drive improvement and growth for the Construction Accessories business.

“Construction Accessories has a powerful customer proposition, a national network of branches, experienced staff and strong supplier relationships,” Vaughan said of his appointment.

“Combined with a market that is ripe with emerging opportunities, I’m confident that we will be able to implement a strategy that will secure the long term profitable growth of this important SIG operating company.”
